COLLIER MARCELLUS SUNK

Later News From The Collision With The Fruit Steamer Rosario

New York, Aug. 11.—The little 619-ton Norwegian steamer Rosario of Giorgio, a fruitler, from Port Antonio, which came into this port yesterday afternoon with her nose all smashed in like an old battered tin can hit the collier Marcellus off Cape Hatteras early Tuesday morning, dealing the navy vessel such a blow that the Marcellus afterward went down after the sister collier Leonidas had rescued all her crew.

Both the Marcellus, which was in command of Capt. Isaac Carver, and the Leonidas, in charge of Capt. Joseph T. Rogers, were bound from Delaware Breakwater, each with two loaded coal lighters for the United States coaling station at Guantanamo, Cuba.

When the dented and scratched Rosario of Giorgio, which comes to the Atlantic Fruit company, arrived here yesterday she did not know that she had sunk the larger vessel, also reversed and came to a dead stop.

Both craft kept blowing their whistles and the Leonidas, which was near, added to the confusion by screeching also. Capt. Larsen, finding that he was not cut below the water line, came on under half steam for New York, supposing that the collier was in condition to keep afloat.

Then late last night came the news from Hampton Roads that the Marcellus had sunk and Capt. Rogers had taken all hands aboard the Leonidas.

FRIGATE PORTSMOUTH

War Worn Ship Should Be Sent Here

If it is not already too late, Portsmouth should get busy and insist on having the old frigate Portsmouth sent to this port, where she was built, and fitted as a naval museum.

To send her to the Pacific coast will be a less appropriate way of dealing with her, and Portsmouth navy yard should have her, for her glory is part of the glory of our community.

The navy department will be asked to consider this.

The Many Decorations

on, Leander Brooks, Frank L. Fornald, Charles F. Drake, Fred Robinson, Dr. Henry I. Durgin, Frank York, Fred Foster and John Hillhouse.

On Bolt hill road the marchers saw decorations at the home of Mrs. Mary A. Spinney.

From the corner of Bolt hill road, down Main street, the decorated residences were those of W. F. Paul, F. L. Spinney, Edwin Cole, Aaron B. Cole, Reg., Arthur Spinney, and Frank Leavitt.

Along Pleasant street below the lower corner of Main street, decorations were out at the residences of Charles Cole, Alfred Spinney, E. H. Fernald, Milo Spinney, Theodore Spinney, Clinton Manson, Wilbur Spinney, David Fernald, Arthur Lewis and the store of H. B. Spinney, and at the lower end of Pleasant street, next the bridge from Kittery stands the triumphal arch, covered with evergreen, draped and entwined with flags and lettered "1810 Welcome 1910."

From the corner of Main street up Pleasant street decorations were out at the residences of Benjamin F. Dowden, Rev. George W. Brown, Joseph W. Davis, Irving Davis, Richard F. Dixon, Samuel Dixon, the Misses Dime, Hannah H. Cole, Wentworth Dame, the No. 7 schoolhouse, the residences of Captain A. L. Hirst, Chas. Huntress, F. A. Staples, Charles E. Paul, Arthur C. Paul, T. F. Staples, Walter Cole, Arthur Butler, the store of T. F. Staples & company, the residences of Postmaster Harry L. Staples, and of Edwin F. Staples.

From the upper corner of Main and Pleasant streets up Main streets displays were made at the residence of Samuel O. and Ernest O. Searles, the No. 6 schoolhouse, the residences of Fred Peart, Augustus Paul, F. W. Wilmot, Hon. George O. Althorne, George E. Howe, Samuel H. Reeves, Rogers Hall, which is the first of the Green Acre buildings, also the Inn, Elvendon cottages, and many of the Green Acre tents, the residences of Wallace F. Dixon, Edwin Tobey, Asa T. Perry, R. G. Edwards, E. Chester Spinney, Mrs. Mary A. Spinney, Geo. Spinney, P. E. Russell and Mrs. M. A. Dixon.

On Farmer road the camp of Dr. Fillmor Moore displays decorations.

From Farmer road to Kennard's corner the route is over State road and was seen on the way down town.

The parade disbanded on the green in front of the beautifully decorated William Fogg public library.

The Gould's corner schoolhouse and a few houses in other parts of the town also display decorations, and flags have been flying to the breeze all the week in every section of old Eliot.

This Afternoon

After the disbandment of the parade there was a rush to the refreshment booths conducted by the John F. Hill Grange.

The program for this afternoon is a band concert on Library Green, from 2 to 4 p. m. At the Moore camp from 3 to 5 p. m. there will be given an exhibit of folk dances and presentation of selections from Mid-summer Night's Dream.

Wednesday Afternoon's Exercises

Just as Hon. James P. Baxter of Portland was concluding the centennial address of Wednesday afternoon in the big tent at the green in front of the library, a light shower came up. Many people were outside the tent, unable to get in because of the crowd, and they fled for home. The shower proved so light that they wished they had stayed and a few of them returned to listen to the rest of the program.

The music of the afternoon was by Hoyt and Parker's orchestra from Portsmouth, and proved a delight to the great audience.

The centennial poem, Eliot Rosemary, the "Sage of a Century," written by Dr. William Hale of Gloucester, Mass., was read by Miss Celia.

Brief addresses were given by four sons of the old town, Ex-Governor John F. Hill of Augusta, Mayor Edward H. Adams of Portsmouth, Dr. William O. Jenkins of Portsmouth, and Selectman James R. Philbrick of Kittery, and by Hon. Asher C. Hinds of Portland.

Mr. Hill was very brief, contenting himself with telling of his pleasure in the reunion of acquaintances and in this glad occasion.

Mr. Adams and Dr. Jenkins followed along the same line, and Mr. Philbrick stirred the people to laughter with the wit in his reminiscences.

There was much curiosity to see Mr. Hinds, and he proved to be a large plump, placid sort of man with a fond of dry wit, and his wittiest remarks were made while he was looking sorrowful. He certainly made himself popular in Eliot by his appearance on the centennial platform.

The closing number of the afternoon program was the centennial ode, sung by the white garbed school children.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. William B. Eldridge of East Eliot Methodist church.

Aaron B. Cole, Esq., president of the day, proved a happy choice for the position. His own remarks were felicitous and his introduction of the speakers and announcements of other features of the program were pleasing to his hearers.

There was a general feeling of gratification at the appearance of Governor Fernald in the first part of the afternoon program. He proved a good mixer off the platform, and a

Suppose You Eat in The Same Fashion That You Cook!

Put the soup in the sideboard, the salt on the table, the bread in the bottom of the china closet, the butter on a chair in the corner of the room.

Arrange every course in a similar way, and then between bites of bread in one corner, you sip your soup in the other.

Stand up during the entire meal and walk back and forth for each mouthful.

Do you think you will enjoy the meal?

Yet your cooking can be grouped as compactly and conveniently as your eating.

A Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet enables you to sit down and do all your kitchen work comfortably with the things you need at your fingers' ends.

It's worth a lot more to you than the little dollar a week it costs.

MAN'S HEAD DRIVEN THROUGH FLOOR

New York, Aug. 11.—After a fall heading down a flight of stairs at his home in Anderson, N. J., Tuesday night, Robert Hull's head was driven through the planking of the floor at the bottom and he stuck there till neighbors got him out. In spite of it he is as well as if nothing had happened, with only a bump on the top of his head to show for his experience. He is seventy-eight years old.

THIEVES HARVEST HAY CROP

Still More of the Visitors to the town Centennial

Eliot, Me., Aug. 11.

Miss Carrie Tarr of Gloucester is visiting at the home of her cousin, Arthur Butler.

Mrs. Harry Whiting and friend of Lynn are the guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Ireland.

At Green Acre on Friday morning Dr. A. A. Berle of Boston will give an address on "Intensive Education." In the afternoon at the Persian Place there will be an informal conference. In the evening at the Congregational church the Green Acre people will give a violin and song recital.

George W. Webber is receiving many congratulations on the success of Monday evening's fireworks at his place in East Eliot. It was, to most Eliot citizens, an unexpected but none the less delightful feature of centennial week. Mr. Webber, in turn, is taking especial pains to thank the neighbors and friends who helped him to see that they get their due share of the credit.

Samuel D. Remick died on Wednesday evening, aged seventy-three years and four months. Mr. Remick was a pensioner from the Civil war, and had for a long time lived on a small farm in the east part of the town. He was never married and his household has been his sister, Miss Sarah Remick, who survives. He also leaves a nephew, Elbridge Remick of North Kittery. Mr. Remick was of a quiet disposition and was highly esteemed by a choice group of friends.

D. W. Sanborn of Somerville, Mass., formerly Boston and Maine railroad superintendent, is one of the centennial visitors in town.

At Lanier Camp

Professor Charles Zueblin of Winchester, Mass., formerly of Chicago University, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lanier on Tuesday.

Miss Nye, Miss Dalton and Miss Rous scored another success Tuesday evening with "Cradle Songs of Many Nations," given in the living room. The "cast" included the junior and senior girls, who in the costume of the country and in characteristic manner sang their wee ones to sleep. The first on the program was the American Lullaby which was sung by Dorothy Dresser. Following this a Russian cradle song, Barbara Bell; Japanese, Carlotta Harwood; Italian, Gertrude Harwood; German, Charlotte Nye; Bohemian, Elizabeth Lanier; Scotch, Olive Ziegler; Swedish, Mary Lanier; American negro cradle song, Barbara Leighton; Hindoo, Ethel Bailey; French, Mary Davis.

The costumes were unusually attractive particularly so when one knows that it is a rule of the camp that no money be spent for material, each evolving her own costume from whatever is available in this way developing resourcefulness.

PORTSMOUTH THEATRE FILLED

Amerno, the great hypnotist attracted another large audience Wednesday evening and surprised the people by his remarkable hypnotic power. Amerno will remain during the week and doubtless draw big houses during his stay.

On Friday afternoon he will put the lady to sleep in McIntosh's window at two o'clock and will wake her in Music Hall on Friday evening.

It is pleasing to note that Mr. F. E. Maroon of Boston, who has been substituting at the piano, will also remain this week. Mr. Maroon is a skilled musician and is very popular in musical circles, both in Boston and New York city. He plays several different instruments and is a first class artist with all.

There will be a dramatic and musical sketch by DeVoe and Davis to night, also Upson Downs, the black-face comedian will appear.

DESPERADOES IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Plymouth, Aug. 11.—George H. Robinson, one of Plymouth's progressive farmers, fell the victim of two "reggs" Wednesday, who sandbagged him and left him unconscious on the floor of his barn, a mile below Plymouth village, at one o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Robinson suffered the loss by fire of his farm house a few years ago, since which time he has lived in the village. It was his custom to work daily upon his farm land and to carry his dinner. Wednesday while eating from his dinner pail near the front door of his barn he was accosted by a tramp who inquired the distance to Plymouth. While conversing he was approached from the rear by another, who clubbed him into insensibility. He was stripped of his trousers, frock and shoes and stockings and relieved of a pocketbook containing some $6 in silver and bill, and then left, with the possibility that he might die.

For four hours Mr. Robinson lay unconscious upon the rough floor of his barn, not regaining his senses until about six o'clock. With great difficulty he made his way to the neighboring farm house of David Glynn, where he told his story and was given such aid as possible. The news was telephoned to the village and later Mr. Robinson was removed to his home, where he is being attended by Dr. Chase. He is suffering from severe bruises on the back of the head, the result without doubt of a severe blow with a sandbag. As he was struck he pitched forward, and has a cut an inch long where he struck upon the floor of the barn. This cut extends from under the right eye on to the right cheek.

The "reggs" stayed around long enough to devour the dinner that Mrs. Robinson had prepared for her husband's consumption, after which they departed for parts unknown. While he is not perfectly clear in his recollection Mr. Robinson describes one of his assailants as about five feet, 10 inches tall, and as wearing a soft black felt hat and gray coat. The other he is unable to describe.

ELKINS DENIES ENGAGEMENT

Report of Daughter's Betrothal a "Foolish Rumor"

IS GLAD TO REFUTE IT

Senator Emphatic in Statement That Reports From Europe Are False—Wife and Katherine Have Not Been Within Many Miles of Place Where Duke of Abruzzi Is Stationed—Paris Hears Stories to the Contrary

New York, Aug. 11.—If the Duke degli Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins, the daughter of Senator Elkins of West Virginia, are engaged, as reports from Europe have indicated, Elkins knows nothing of it. In fact he denied emphatically, just before he left this city for New England, that the two are to marry.

"It is a foolish rumor about their engagement," he said, "and nothing more. I am glad to deny it emphatically. I have not heard that the duke has met my daughter during her sojourn abroad. If he had I am sure I would have heard it. These reports about her and the duke, which at first were very serious to me, are now becoming very amusing."

"These reports from Europe sometimes cause me laughter. In one dispatch they have my wife and daughter in one place, and in another dispatch several hundred miles away. The truth is they are at a little place near Wiesbaden, in the north of Germany, where Mrs. Elkins is stopping for the benefit of her health."

"They have not been in the south of Austria or within many, many miles of Venice. I believe they have no intention of going there, either."

As Heard in Paris

Paris, Aug. 11.—A dispatch to L'Echo from Baden-Baden says that the Duke degli Abruzzi visited Miss Katherine Elkins at Laugenachswalbach on four occasions, each time bringing with him a huge bouquet. The last call was made on July 30.

Miss Elkins and her mother, the correspondent adds, will leave Baden-Baden for Paris this week, and will be joined in the French capital by the duke.

PRISON COUNTERFEITERS

Three Convicts and a Woman Found to Be in Queer Deal

Boston, Aug. 11.—Three convicts in the Charlestown state prison have been implicated in the counterfeiting which was recently disclosed there by the payment of a bribe made by a couple of prisoners on a prison hall game.

Another person, supposed to be a woman, who passed the spurious coin outside the prison doors for the counterfeiters, eluded all attempts on the part of the prison authorities and the secret service men to secure her identity.

Patrick J. Hauley, 50 years old, of Lynn, who is serving a sentence of twenty-five years as an habitual criminal, is regarded as the leader of the counterfeiting gang. The identity of the other two convicts has been withheld by the prison officials.

"WEED PICKING" STUNTS

Adopted by Members of Summer Colony to Beat Board of Health

Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 11.—The summer vacationists at Lake Assawampsett, in Lakeville, have won a signal victory over the Taunton health authorities. The health people have absolutely forbidden bathing in the lake, but stated that it was permissible for any cottager to don a bathing costume and pick-out the weeds and other growth near the landing places.

As soon as this order was heard of by the cottagers they all donned their suits and last evening every person on the lake was busy "picking weeds" in the lake. They cannot understand, however, why bathing in the lake will contaminate Taunton's water supply while "weeding" will not.

PARADE IN RAIN

Total Abstainers True to the Cause They Have Expoused

Boston, Aug. 11.—Eight thousand men and women, members of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, paraded in the rain through the streets of Boston last evening.

Although the 15,000, which it had been expected would take part in the parade, did not materialize, the 8,000 who did appear made a very favorable impression. The varicolored decorations on the automobiles, carrying the women's auxiliaries and societies, and the white duck or khaki suits of the youngsters added to the beauty of the spectacle.

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 11.—The strike of twenty-one lasters employed at Harvey Bros.' shoe factory turned in their favor when the company accepted the demands of the union. The lasters claimed that the men were dropped unjustly.

TWO BROTHERS DEAD, ONE FATALLY HURT

Playmate Is Also Killed When Express Train Strikes Them

Providence, Aug. 11.—Three boys were run down and killed and a fourth fatally injured by the "Portland Flyer" on the New Haven railroad near Cowesett.

Three of the boys were sons of John A. Straight, a jewelry manufacturer, who has a summer home at Cowesett, a few miles from East Greenwich.

The four boys, the eldest of whom was 12 years, were playing along the tracks, and stepped from in front of an oncoming freight train in front of the express.

The two eldest Straight boys were killed, the third was fatally injured, and a fourth boy, whose name was Wood, was also killed.

LEAVE LOOT BEHIND

Burglars Evidently Frightened After Ransacking a Boston House

Boston, Aug. 11.—The residence of Robert T. Paine, Jr., in the exclusive Back Bay district, was broken into and ransacked from cellar to garret by burglars who, after gathering considerable jewelry and boring holes in a safe preparatory to blowing it open, were evidently frightened, as they left without taking any of the loot. They also left a complete collection of burglars' tools, which are now in the possession of the police.

Entrance was effected through a basement door in the rear. After cutting all burglar alarm wires, the robbers went through the entire house, breaking into closets and pulling out bureau drawers, emptying them of their contents. In this way a large amount of jewelry was collected.

CONDITION IS SATISFACTORY

Hopes of Gaynor's Recovery Grow Still Brighter

HE IS VERY CHEERFUL

Only Complaint Is That He Does Not Get Enough to Eat—Jersey Justice Expected to Make New Speed Record in Trial and Conviction of Mayor's Assailant—Says He Feels No Remorse and Thought He Was Doing the Public a Service

New York, Aug. 11.—Mayor Gaynor is making a splendid fight for his life in St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, where he has been since Tuesday morning, when James J. Gallagher, a discharged city employee, attempted to assassinate him as he stood talking with friends on the deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. His favorable condition leads those about his bedside to believe that his wonderful vitality will pull him through.

A most remarkable feature of the sensational happening is that he does not yet know who shot him. He has not asked about it and no one has volunteered the information. While his life is still in danger from any one of several complications, which are always to be feared in such cases, his physicians are hourly growing more hopeful of his recovery. The optimistic feeling in this respect does not show in the bulletins issued from time to time as much as it does in the relieved expression on their faces. They are cautious about exaggerating the favorable condition of their patient, but they are jubilant at the progress he is making.

His temperature hovered about the hundred mark all day and at no time was there even a suggestion of fever. To all inquiries the mayor replied that he was feeling fine.

No effort has been made to probe for the fragments of Gallagher's bullet which an examination disclosed to be located among some of the unimportant tissues of the throat.

Some of the physicians fear that the bullet may have bruised one of the important arteries, but it will take several days to determine if this is so. Mayor Gaynor conversed with Mrs. Gaynor for nearly three hours yesterday afternoon. He assured her that he was feeling splendidly and then proceeded to tell her how hungry he was. He convinced her that there was a conspiracy on foot to starve him and soon had her all smiles with his humorous references to the economy of the commissary department. He is passionately fond of bacon and he implored her to take her influence with the physicians to get him a few slices.

Mrs. Gaynor put the proposition up to the physicians and they assured her that he would get his favorite dish today if he continued to improve.

He ate broth at frequent intervals during the day and had coffee once or twice, but was not permitted to indulge in solid food.

"If they will only give me something to eat, I won't have to take medicine," said the mayor.

"JERSEY JUSTICE"

It Is Expected to Make New Record in the Case of Gallagher

James J. Gallagher was especially cheerful after he was visited by his lawyer, Samuel T. Jackoff, in the Jersey City jail shortly before noon. During the afternoon he smiled pleasantly at those who peered through the grating and some of his fellow prisoners say that occasionally he snuck snatches of songs. His lawyer stated that an insanity defense would be entered in his behalf.

The machinery for Gallagher's trial has started and Prosecutor Garvin announced that far-famed Jersey justice is out for a new speed record in his case. It is planned to have the grand jury indict Gallagher before the end of this week and place him on trial Monday morning.

It is expected that two indictments will be found against him, one charging him with an attempt to kill William H. Edwards, the street cleaning commissioner, who stopped one of the bullets intended for the mayor with his left arm. In New Jersey the minimum penalty for assault with intent to kill is twenty years. With commutation this means a 12-year sentence, so the best that Gallagher can hope for, unless his attorney succeeds in proving him insane, is twenty-four years in prison.

He is 58 years old and this would probably be a life sentence in his case. Under the New Jersey law Gallagher could be tried for murder if Mayor Gaynor should die within a year and a day of the prisoner's conviction for the tressor crime.

Gallagher's Stand Gallagher's statement, made last evening, was his first frank talk concerning the crime. "While I will not say that I am sorry," he said, "I now hope that the mayor gets well. But I wanted to teach high officials to regard the rights of subordinates. I consider that I had to shoot the mayor as a lesson to the country. I did what I did for personal principles and was not prompted by any anarchist belief."

"I am sorry that Commissioner Edwards was wounded, for I was aiming only at the mayor. But even the thought of killing him had not been long in my mind. In fact I reached no decision until I bought a newspaper yesterday morning."

"The paper said that Gaynor was going to sail on a vacation. That made me angry, to think that he should have a vacation in Europe while I did not even have a chance to work, much less get a vacation. So I hurried over the Twenty-third street ferry and inquired my way to the Kaiser Wilhelm."

"My wrongs had proved more than I thought I could bear. Over and over I sized up my hard situation in life and contrasted it with that of some other men. Mayor Gaynor, who had wronged me, in particular. At length I determined to seek revenge which I concluded should be justly mine."

"No, I was not drunk when I went aboard the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, as has been intimated. On the contrary, I had not taken a drop of liquor since last Saturday. My drinking on that day was limited to a single glass of beer."

"Had I heard of President McKinley's assassination? Of course, and I believe assassination is sometimes right."

MURDER OF TWO MAYORS

Revenge the Motive in the Cases of Boushman and Harrison

The most recent assassination of a mayor of an American city was that two weeks ago of Mayor A. H. Boushman, who was blown to death by a dynamite bomb hurled beneath a hammock in which he was resting on the lawn in front of his home, in Ridgewood, Va.

The murder was the work of a crank. The assassin has not yet been caught and not even a clue to his identity has been found. Presumably the killing by several policemen of a negro whom they had mistaken in a hunt for a fugitive led up to the destruction of Boushman.

As mayor of the Virginia city Boushman served also as the police judge. At his direction the policemen negligently shot the innocent negro who was sent upon the hunt for the real criminal. The negro population of the town openly accused the mayor of responsibility for the act of the police.

Probably the most sensational murder of the chief magistrate of any city in this country was that of Carter Harrison, mayor of Chicago, in his home there on the evening of Oct. 28, 1893. His death was due to the disturbed mind of a crank, Eugene Prendergast, a newspaper carrier, to be rid of whom he had promised a place in the city government soon after his election to the mayoralty in the preceding April.

The murder of Harrison occurred in his home, where he was shot three times by the disappointed Prendergast as he walked from the room in which he had been dining with his son and daughters into the hallway, where he had been called by a maid to meet his assassin.

Mayor Harrison's death occurred practically on the eve of his second marriage. Although he was 68 years old, he was to have been married within a month of the day he was shot to Miss Anne Howard, 23 years old. Harrison was first chosen as mayor of Chicago in 1879 and served continuously for eight years. Later he was defeated for election as governor of Illinois and as United States senator, to be returned as mayor following the election in 1893.

Prendergast, who had hoped until the last moment that the death sentence would at least be reduced to one of life imprisonment, was hanged on July 13, 1894.

STATE OFFERS REWARD

Thousand Dollars Now Await the Captor of Louis Restell

Boston, Aug. 11.—Acting Governor Frothingham, in behalf of the state, has joined in the search for Louis C. Restell, the Quincy murderer, who has eluded capture since his death raid in Quincy twelve days ago, by adding $500 reward to the previous reward of $500 offered by members of the Hardwick family for the rubbing down of the slayer.

Chief of Police Burrell of Quincy received a dispatch from Sydney, N. Y., stating that the suspect taken into custody there is not the man wanted. That leaves the police just where they were on the evening following the tragedy.

WALTER BROOKINS

Daring Aviator Who Holds the High Flight Record

BROOKINS IS BADLY INJURED

He Falls With His Aeroplane at Asbury Park

RISKS LIFE FOR OTHERS

Receives Broken Nose and Possibly Internal Injuries When He Swerves Machine to Avoid Hitting Crowd of Photographers—Seven Spectators Are Hurt, One Probably Fatally, as Daring Aviator Falls to Earth

New York, Aug. 11.—Walter A. Brookins, the most daring of young aviators, deliberately risked his life at the aviation field at Asbury Park, N. J., to avoid hitting a crowd of photographers, and crashed to the earth in his Wright biplane.

Brookins was buried under the overturned machine and was caught between the earth and the heavy motor that had been displaced by the fall, while seven other persons were caught by parts of the descending machine and hurled in different directions, bruised and battered. One boy is believed to be fatally injured.

The exact extent of Brookins' injuries is not yet known. His nose was broken, but what the doctors are anxious about is the possibility of internal injuries.

The wind was blowing at a 25-mile clip from the southeast when Brookins made his appearance on the field. It was the first public demonstration of the starting of a Wright machine from the wheels. The machine rolled along toward the center of the field for about 200 feet and then rose beautifully to a height of about 150 feet on the first turn.

At the first circle the aeroplane did not seem much affected by the wind, being in part protected by the tall trees, but on the second turn as the machine rose above the treetops the fragile craft rocked and rolled.

After being in the air at a height of 600 feet nearly ten minutes, Brookins concluded to descend, aiming to land directly in front of the grandstand. He made five or six circles, dropping 200 feet at the first circle and then directed his machine over the grandstand.

When the machine was only forty feet from the ground the aviator saw directly below him a group of photographers. With a sudden jerk of the lever Brookins aimed his machine again into the teeth of the wind. The turn was too quick, but it was his only chance to avoid injury to others.

As the wind caught the tail it lifted it in the air, turning the nose of the machine downward, and it went to earth, crashing to the ground a foot from the end of the grandstand. Those injured were unable to get out of the way when the flying parts of the machine scattered.

Brookins was with difficulty dragged from under the broken motor and it was some time before he recovered his senses.

"I did the only thing possible," Brookins said later. "I had to make that turn to save the men in the field. As soon as I am well I am going to go up again."

Brookins was 23 years old, and his home was in Dayton, O., the home of the Wright brothers. He was employed as an aviator by the Wright brothers. On July 9 at Atlantic City in a Wright aeroplane he smashed all existing world's aeroplane records for altitude. In the presence of 150,000 people he went up 6100 feet.

In Indianapolis on June 13 he went up 4384 feet, which then became the world's altitude record until Brookins himself beat it at Atlantic City.

Wilbur Wright declared that Brookins was one of the greatest air pilots in the world.

Postoffice Robbers Get $1700

CRANE'S MISSION A FAILURE

Now Up to Hitchcock to Get Ballinger Out of the Cabinet

Washington, Aug. 11.—That Postmaster General Hitchcock will be sought to do what he can toward getting Secretary Ballinger out of the cabinet is the information that is disclosed here on high authority. It is now well known in Washington that the man who is setting the forces in motion to have Ballinger get out of the cabinet is Private Secretary Norton.

Mr. Norton is impressed by the complaints of politicians which are reaching Beverly that Ballinger's presence in the cabinet is an obstacle to Republican success in the present campaign.

That the mission of Senator Crane is so far as it related to removing Ballinger from the cabinet was a failure and that the publicity given it prevented its success is the statement made here in well-informed quarters. Now it is said Norton takes the view that Hitchcock, having been chiefly instrumental in getting Ballinger into the cabinet, should be chiefly instrumental in getting him out.

HIS WISH GRATIFIED

Pugilist Joe Gans Dies in the Arms of His Old "Mammy"

Baltimore, Aug. 11.—Joe Gans, former lightweight pugilist champion, died at his home here.

The old master died as he wished to—in the arms of his mother. It was that he might be with his old "mammy" at the end that the great lightweight made his race with death a week ago, hurrying on from Arizona, where he had sought relief in his battle with consumption.

Gans was conscious until two hours before his death. At his bedside at the time he breathed his last, beside his mother, were his wife and two children.

Gans was married three times. The exact cause of his death may be learned only by the physicians, but Father Time and the punellings received in over 150 ring battles do not leave much doubt as to what finally laid the once great fighter away.

VAHEY IN THE RACE FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Candidate Declares He Has No Intention of Withdrawing

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 11.—"I shall positively be a candidate for the governorship of Massachusetts this fall on the Democratic ticket, and under no consideration do I intend to withdraw from the race."

This was the announcement made by James H. Vahey at the outing of the Worcester county Democratic committee at Ridgeman. There have been rumors that Vahey would withdraw from the race in favor of Congressman Foss, but Vahey's statements put a crimp in the bonnet of any "democrat" who expected Foss to have a "clean" field for the gubernatorial candidacy.

A great crowd of Democrats from all over the state listened to Vahey's speech, in which he predicted Democratic victory in the coming state election.

It was expected that Messrs. Foss and Hamlin, both of whom have been mentioned as possibilities for the Democratic nomination, would be at the outing. Neither came, however, nor did they send any letters of explanation.

While engaged in conversation he was hit on the head with a sandbag and rendered unconscious.

He was stripped of his trousers and frock, and his shoes and stockings were removed, as was

The Fireworks

The fireworks on Wednesday evening drew a great throng to Green Acre despite the threatening weather. Many of those who went stayed in the street and watched the display as best they could, while those who went down to the Green Acre grounds had a splendid view.

The fireworks were discharged on the open space across the driveway from the Etesion, and the people gathered about that building and on its broad veranda enjoyed it to the full. Despite the drizzle that was wetting everything not sheltered.

An hour and a quarter program was given, opening with a salvo of bombs, and closing with the set piece "Adieu." Rockets, star showers, snake showers, floating stars, Roman candles, colored fire, pinwheels, and all the new and old devices were to be seen.

A feature was the large set piece, "1810 Elliot-1910" in many colored lights.

The centennial fireworks committee has been: Charles F. Drake, John L. Emery, William L. Hobbs, Mrs. Harry L. Staples, Mrs. Howard P. Libbey.

The Centennial Ode

The centennial ode was written by Rev. Augustine Caldwell and is sung to the tune of Auld Lang Syne. The drilling of the children for the singing of the ode has been in charge of a sub-committee of the program and music committees, consisting of Mrs.

Charles E. Foye, Miss Myrtle A. Ham, and Mrs. D. Cromwell Clark. The ode is as follows:

ELLIOT'S "OLD LANG SYNE."

Shall we forget the Long Ago,
And cease to bring to mind
The treasured names that gave a glow
To Elliot's Lang Syne?

Chorus.

Our old Lang Syne, we sing,
Our old Lang Syne,
We'll ne'er forget the early days,
Our old Lang Syne.

We welcome old friends,—gladly greet
And clasp their hands today;
And of past times we will repeat
The good cheer of the day.

How full of treasure is the Past,
How rich the words and deeds
Of those whose efforts long will last,
Whose influence ne'er recedes.

Therefore 'tis joy for us to sing
On these memorial days;
The any, man treasures bring
That fill our minds with praise.

And as our joy is thus complete,
Each others hands we'll grasp,
Greetings and Farewells,—each brings joys
And memories that will last.

Address of Hon. E. H. Adams

Mayor Adams said in part:
Mr. Chairman, friends, neighbors and fellow citizens:

It has given me a great deal of pleasure to come back here today to look into the faces of so many whom I have known so long and so favorably, to bring the greeting of all Portsmouth's citizens to this large and enthusiastic gathering and to take some brief part in these interesting and instructing exercises.

All this I assure you, has given me new courage and new friends. All this has brought back to me a large share of that richness that belongs to those things which make up the joy of life. In many eyes before me I see the light of love and friendship which I know is reflected back to every one from the inmost chambers of my heart.

Old home days are almost of necessity days of personal reminiscences but I can tell very little that is personal. I stand among friends. I can tell you very little that is new for I have been in your sight ever since I was a resident here. But in all these years I have never forgotten this grand old town nor its noble citizenship nor its helpful and inspiring influences that have had much to do in leading me to manhood. In the discharge of all my labors, whenever I was right I was confident that I had the approval of this people; and whenever I fell short, their charitable judgment.

Let me suggest that we are living in days of great enterprise and great achievements. Wooden shoes and ox carts for travel have become things of the past. Electricity has drawn the old stage coach up under the shed and left it there to rot and turned the horses out to pasture. We bore tunnels through mountains at the cost of billions of dollars. We tax the brain to its utmost capacity to take the fraction of a second from the schedule time. We ride on the morning light and whisper into every human ear with a single breath like the kinsman and heirs of the infinite. We go to war in palace cars. We fight great battles thousands of miles from the scene of the conflict, and with maps and charts, telephone and telegraph order each charge and change. We do everything upon the most magnificent scale, whether it be the subduing of a wilderness or the controlling of a government. No age was ever greater than this nor more intense, no age was ever held with greater responsibilities or filled with greater possibilities.

The great cry of the age is for men. The world is full of babes and children. We want men. We are much concerned about opportunity.

We should be more concerned about ability. There is plenty of room under this Eastern sky for the greatest man of the age. But where are the workers? The great cause languishes. I wish I could drop this thought into every home in the land that our slumbering youth and indifferent maidens would spring forth from their repose, saying, "As for me, come what will, I will improve my opportunities and my powers and push out with the scouts and pioneers along the lines of all thought and progress and invention up into the mountain tops of all knowledge." But all this takes time; there is no short cut to greatness. But what of that? Are we not immortal? Is not all the future before us? We run quickly to the end of this life of toil and struggle to march along the eternal ages in companionship and association with princes and powers and principalities and dominions and thrones of Heaven.

When I think of man with his great purposes, with his free agency, vitalized and inspired by the eternal spirit, standing before his maker with the great multitude of beings who rally around his throne and uphold the powers of his government, when I reflect upon all this, then the struggles of this life and the changes of time put on new grandeur and I stand forth in my kinship believing that all things are possible to him that willeth and believeth.

Today I wish to go on record as desiring for everyone of you some noble purpose, some noble ambition that will shake the finger into the face of Fate, saying, "I feel noble inspirations stirring within me, you cannot hold me back, I will leave a foothold in your uncrumbling walls." Speech and conscience distinguishes man from the animal. Only the sheep and the oxen and the mere animals are satisfied with food and shelter.

The fabled warrior who brushed all resistance from before his arrow and whispered to his bow, "Fail not," and to his arrow, "Stop not," as he sent it on its mission around the world did but twang the bow of the brain and speed its tireless thought. Such an one stands forth the noblest type of man: below him are the animals, but above him God.

You are undoubtedly familiar with that beautiful new testament story of the redeemed woman, who in the great wealth of her affection broke the costly vase and poured forth the precious ointment. The great Teacher of humanity commends the waste and commands the fragments to float into all atmospheres and to all generations, saying, "This shall be a memorial of her wherever this gospel is preached."

Upon this supreme authority I rest my case and say to every one of you, "Add wings and spurs to your thought and let your noble deeds fill all the lands with resounding praise."

Dr. Junkins' Address

Ladies and gentlemen, and companions of my youth—

Often I think my boyhood trails are still within me. It may be however, that I am so constituted that I still retain a minimum amount of that timidity which permeated, and in no small degree controlled my nervous system in those good old days of long ago when that thorough and thoroughly charming woman Miss Bacon, first taught me under compulsory and thoroughly approved methods to declaim from the rostrum of Elliot Academy. There are, no doubt, some here today who recall these colossal selections from such celebrated orators as Demosthenes, and Cicero, and the memory of my youthful embarrassment will still provoke a feeling and amused smile.

JAMES PHINNEY BAXTER, LL. D.,
Ex-Mayor of Portland, President of Maine Historical Society, who was orator at the Elliot Town Centennial.

We read of days that tried men's souls, but they were as mere nothing when compared to my sufferings. The excessive action of my heart, the lack of muscular stamina in my pedal extremities, which nature intended for the support of my body, the icy coldness of the perspiration issuing from every pore, my tongue clearing to the roof of my mouth, while my eyes were riveted to the ceiling, scarcely daring even an occasional glance towards some rosy cheeked damsel or roguish, mischievous boy whose rosy, cheery face gave no hint of the sympathy and encouragement for which I was so eagerly yearning.

I presume the youth of this present age has no such feelings when declaiming day comes around. How it all comes back to me today, lacking some of its stern realities, not as a fleeting vision of childhood, but rather as one of a thousand recollections awakened and recreated into a new existence by the sight of familiar faces and welcoming tones. Ah, but those were happy days, as well, and as reminiscences come up before me and the growing love of you haunts me, I am reminded of that Layland song immortalized by our own loved Longfellow "That a boy's will is the wind's will, and the thoughts of youth are long, long, thoughts."

It seems that every foot of land is hallowed by the most delightful memories, and again I tread the same sunny pathways, flecked by the same flickering shadows, cross the old melon patch, and orchard rich with nature's choicest specimens, then over the bars and into the meadow where winding along with ripple and laughter the silvery brook ran its merry way.

Do I get the echo of some one calling the old familiar name, "Bill," not "Doctor"? Do I hear the question, "Would you live those happy days again?"

Certainly. Ah, happy years, once more to be a boy, for this the balcony days of youth that are life's golden holiday and manhood's prime is but the silvery afterglow. In wholesome revelry the seed is scattered to blossom and nature in the ripening years. The boys of yesterday are today the world's actors, while tomorrow, history will recount heroic deeds or blasted hopes.

"How beautiful is youth, how bright it gleams,
With its illustrations, aspirations, dreams;
Books of Beginnings, story without end,
Each maid a heroine, and each man a friend."

It is with joy since that I meet and greet you all, and my heart overflows with thankful gladness that God in his infinite mercy has spared so many of my old associates to give me the glad hand.

sent us back for renewed blessings from her generous, loving heart.

We bow to dear, old Elliot—home of our boyhood and love. I cherish the greatest, keenest affection for the Pine Tree State. I honor and revere my New England ancestry, and I would rather be a Son of this rough and rugged soil than to claim origin from the proudest Norman that ever met a foe.

Let us be children for one day. Let the cares and troubles of daily life be forgotten. Let us sing songs of gladness. Let us be children together. Let us go around arm in arm and hand in hand, and visit, yes, and revisit, again and again, those spots dear to memory still.

Friday's Program

On Friday at two o'clock there will be a basket picnic at Lander camp, followed by enactment of an original drama depicting the submission of Maine to Massachusetts. The drama was written by Prof. Dykema of Boston, and is to be enacted within a few rods of the original spot where the submission act was voted and the submission papers signed at the William Everett tavern on Nov. 16, 1652. At 7.30 o'clock Friday evening there will be a concert at the Congregational church by Miss Gertrude Walker-Crowley, soprano; Mr. John Crowley, tenor; Mr. Arthur Hanson, violinist; Miss Mabel Stone, pianist. This concert is one of the several important contributions from Green Acre to the town's big week. The program is:

Duet: "I Adieu" Nicolai
Mrs. Walker-Crowley and Mr. Crowley
"Es blüht der Thau" Rubinstein
"Die Lorelei" Liszt
"Vergebliches Staendchen" Brahms
Mrs. Gertrude Walker-Crowley
Violin solos:
Meditation, MacDowell
To a Wild Rose, MacDowell
Mr. Hanson

"Could I" Tosti
"Bonne Nuit" Massenet
"Where Blooms the Rose," violin obligato, Johns
Mrs. Gertrude Walker-Crowley
Waltz Song, Stern
Mrs. Gertrude Walker-Crowley
Violin solo: Thais, Mr. Hanson

Duets:
"Night Hymn at Sea" Goring Thomas
"It Was a Lover and His Lass" Walthour
Mr. and Mrs. Crowley
Children's Songs:
"The Cuckoo" Lehmann
"If No One Ever Marries Me" Lehmann
"The Yellow Chrysanthemum" Salter
Mrs. Gertrude Walker-Crowley
Ave Maria, violin obligato, Bach
Mrs. Gertrude Walker-Crowley

KNOWS EVERY WORD OF THE BIBLE

At a recent family reunion at Newmarket of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pinkham there were four generations present and the occasion was marked by the presence of Joshua Wetherell, 84 years of age.

Mr. Wetherell was former resident of Portsmouth and for many years was connected with the Kearsarge mills until the plant was destroyed by fire. He is a veteran of the civil war and served in the navy. He is known as a great reader of the Bible and has the old testament by heart, having read the good book twenty-one times. Not only this, but he has counted every letter, word and verse of the entire Bible, and on cylinders of paper he has jotted down in tabular form for ready reference a vast amount of statistical information regarding it. This accomplishment is the more remarkable from the fact that Mr. Wetherell never attended school. Not until after marriage was he able to teach himself to read and write.
